2nd WORLD KENDO CHAMPIONSHIPS

HOST: KENDO FEDERATION OF UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
LOS ANGELES SAN FRANCISCO

State of California
GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO 95814

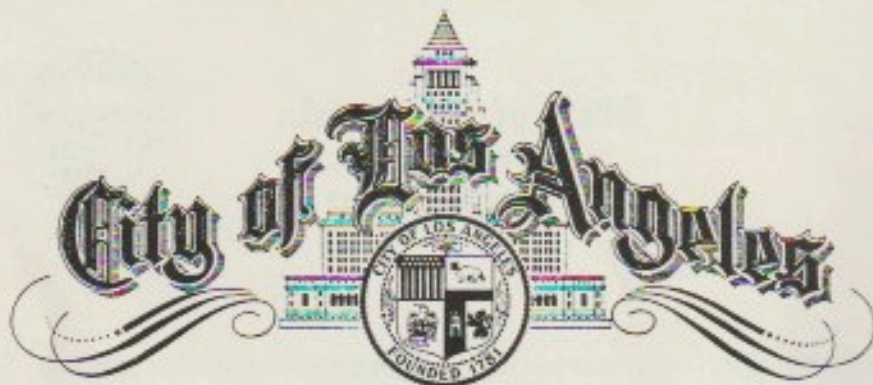

As Governor, I am pleased to welcome to California the Second World Kendo Team Championship Tournament and to extend greetings and good wishes to everyone attending and participating in the competition.

You who have become proficient in this ancient art have done so through much study, training and self-discipline, and I commend you for such dedication to the concepts and high ideals of Kendo. These concepts promote the development of a keen mind and a healthy body.

Best wishes to all for a successful and most enjoyable tournament.

Sincerely,

RONALD REAGAN
Governor

April 8, 1973

GREETINGS;

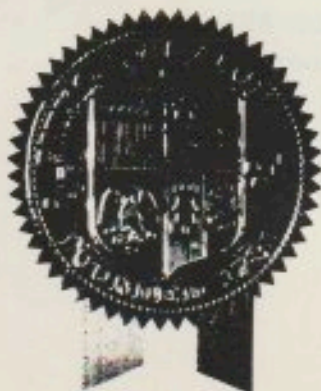

As Mayor of the City of Los Angeles and on behalf of 2.9 million citizens I extend my warmest greetings to the Second Annual World Kendo Championship Tournament to be held at the Los Angeles Sports Arena. This tournament, sponsored by the National Kendo Federation, will have five hundred participants and observers from over twenty nations and many thousands of spectators who will be participating at this tournament.

Kendo or Japanese fencing, for centuries was regarded strictly as a Japanese martial art. However, modern devotees have most recently developed it as an international sport following the traditional ideas not only to acquire the skill in the use of the sword, but also in the total mental and physical self-control and self-development, and also the principle of mutual respect among opponents.

This sport has found keen interest throughout the world, and may we join you with the hope that this tournament will contribute towards better understanding and friendship among the citizens of all participating countries.

Sincerely,

MAYOR

A. YAMATO
CONSULTANT GENERAL OF JAPAN

Greetings:

This is the first time that the world kendo championship tournament has crossed the seas from Japan to be hosted in the United States with participants from many countries, and it is with great pleasure that I extend my best wishes on the holding of the Second World Kendo Tournament.

As a time-honored traditional art, kendo developed in Japan as a way and means not only for the acquisition of skill in fencing but also as a character-builder. Today, with the holding of the Second World Kendo Tournament in the California cities of Los Angeles and San Francisco, kendo has become an internationalized sport that continues to attract growing interest in many countries and serves as a bridge in the promotion of international friendship.

The significance of the Kendo Tournament lies in its objective of contributing to increased international friendship and mutual understanding not only between Japan and the United States but among the free nations of the world.

The young participants from the various countries have, I believe, a unique opportunity to display their skills and also, at the same time, to take advantage of the gathering to personally practise the sporting spirit embodied in kendo and thereby further the cause of international peace and friendship.

My sincere congratulations go to the participants as well as to all who are concerned with the Second World Kendo Tournament, and I extend my best wishes for the continuing success of kendo as an international sport.

Sincerely yours,

Akira Yamato
Consul General

T. KIMURA
PRESIDENT
INTERNATIONAL
KENDO FEDERATION

Greetings:

It gives me a great pleasure and I am sure I speak for Kendo fans all over the world — to be able to hold this Second World Kendo Championships in such grand style, with the gathering here in the United States of the World's best Kendoists from various countries.

The International Kendo Federation was founded only in 1970, but the number of affiliating countries has since reached as many as twenty. The number of fans too has been rising with the passage of time.

This is proof of the deepening understanding and appreciation of the true worth of Kendo by the peoples of the World and is an event worthy of extreme rejoicing.

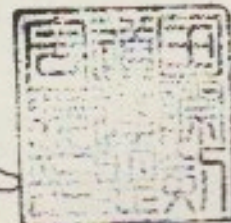

I pray that each of you will achieve a fine record here by demonstrating to the hilt the result of your training to date.

Let this tournament be not simply a place to match one's skills against each other but an opportunity to polish and improve one's spiritual and physical capabilities. Let it further be a place for all to exchange amity and to establish friendship among us. Hand-in-hand we should like to contribute to the establishment of peace and furtherance of welfare throughout the world.

In conclusion, I would like to express my deepest gratitude to each member and / or supporter of the United States Kendo Federation who are the sponsors of this tournament and who have made this gathering possible through their extraordinary efforts.

Truly yours,

Tokutaro Kimura
Tokutaro Kimura
President of International
Kendo Federation

T. NAKABARA
PRESIDENT
KENDO FEDERATION
OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

In Japan, Kendo has been traced to ancient times. Within the last fifty years, this ancient art of fencing has been introduced to the American people.

Kendo's ever-increasing popularity has resulted in the formation of numerous Kendo organization throughout the world. And finally in April 1970 the International Kendo Federation was established. In that same year, the first International Kendo Championship was held in Tokyo, and at this time the United States was selected for the Second Annual International Kendo Championship.

As the host, this year with great expectations, the Kendo Federation of the United States of America anticipates that the Second International Kendo Championship to be as successful as the first. We heartily welcome all delegates from their respective countries. We are confident that the fraternity and goodwill exemplified by the Kendo delegates will further promote world fellowship and peace.

Last of all, I wish to thank all of the various organizations, news media and all individuals who have assisted us in making possible this Second International Kendo Championship.

Torataro Nakabara
Torataro Nakabara, President

SCORING A KENDO MATCH

THE MATCH: The match is conducted on a square court measuring approximately 10 yards by 10 yards. Opposing players are identified by red or white streamers which are worn on the back. Three referees and two line judges, each carrying a red and a white flag, oversee the match.

When a referee observes a point, he raises a flag of the appropriate color. Each of the remaining referees then responds by: (a) raising his flag to indicate agreement; (b) crossing his flags back and forth in front of himself to indicate disagreement; or (c) holding his flags crossed in front of himself to indicate that he did not see the point. A point is awarded when: (a) two or three of the referees raise the same colored flag; or (b) one referee raises his flag and the remaining two indicate they did not see the point.

The first player to score two points is declared the winner. In the event the score remains tied after the allotted match time has elapsed (usually 5 minutes), an extension period is announced. The first person to score a point during the extension period (usually 3 minutes) is declared the winner. If neither player makes a point, a draw is declared.

POINTS: CUTS AND THRUSTS: Illustrated below are the points recognized in kendo:

Mide-men: a clean blow on the left side of the men.
Mige-men: a similar blow on the right of the men.

The weapon used in kendo is the shinai which is approximately four feet in length and is made of four carefully formed bamboo slats bound together to form a hollow cylinder. A cord runs along the length of the shinai. To make a valid cut a player must strike his opponent with the side opposite the cord. In addition the point of contact must be within the top third of the shinai.

PENALTY POINTS: Actions such as stepping out of bounds, pushing unfairly or grasping the blade portion of an opponent's shinai are considered fouls. When a player has committed a third foul in a single match, his opponent is awarded a point.
